	Trust Update
2	Notes
	We discussed, in detail, the issues from the advice line call conversation in July which resulted in the downgrading of the neonatal unit following an increase in mortality there. The Trust commissioned a review by the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health and the Royal College of Nursing. The initial feedback is that there are no immediate risks to patient safety which have been identified, and therefore no referrals will be made, however, the reviewers have recommended a more detailed review into a number of identified incidents, which the trust has challenged, to be undertaken by an independent external consultant and this is currently being arranged. We also discussed the individual involved who has been removed from the unit for her own protection, there are no grounds for a referral and the trust is appropriately managing this person with a view to a phased approach to return to the neonatal unit. Unfortunately, the individual concerned has initiated a grievance against the trust which is due to be heard soon. AK also mentioned the trust will be a pilot for a new working model which involves electronic surveillance, through identification passes, of nurses and midwives to align duties to meet patient demands. This is an exciting initiative that is due to commence next year.
